All Are Protected.

Sometimes the most common sense arguments in favor of a protective tariff are offered by plain workingmen who do not make pretensions of a knowledge of the science of political economy. Such a man writes to a New York paper in regard to the howl going up from the free trade press about the "robber tariff," and the charge that nothing but the trusts and combines are to get the benefit, everybody else being robbed.

The writer wants to know if these howlers ever stop to consider that nearly everybody is protected, except the manufacturer. This is a startling suggestion and yet the correspondent figures it out that such is the case, to his own satisfaction, at least, and he defies any one to say nay to his proposition. The lawyer, he says, is not only protected from foreign competition by a distance of 3,000 miles of Atlantic ocean, but he protects himself at home as well. Lawyers are not expected to go from one place to another to practice their profession. In like manner, this writer goes on to say, the doctors and dentists are protected. They sometimes form organizations and meet to fix prices and protect themselves. Blacksmiths and workers in the builders' trades, masons, bricklayers, architects, house-painters, store keepers in the retail line—among all classes there are general understandings as to fixed prices, so that there is no unfair competition, and they have no foreign competition.

This may not be regarded as a very logical point in favor of protection by tariff duties, but our friend proceeds to argue that some of these classes which seem to require no protection are doubly protected, especially the professions, "while the manufacturer, who has the whole world to contend with, they would deny any protection whatever. If he asks for it he is classed as a combiner with trusts and robbers. Even with a protective tariff the manufacturer must compete with foreign importations, besides contending with home competition."

This is one way to look at the question, but our friend might have gone further and spoken of even a class of men who believe in free trade, and vote for it (denouncing the manufacturers as protected barons), but who demand a protective tariff on their own particular line of industry. They are for free trade in everything but their own products and there they draw the line. Fortunately the Republican doctrine is not so narrow, nor does it discriminate. It believes in the protection of all American interests that need it.

The West Virginian, is the title of a new Republican daily newspaper at Charleston. It starts on its career under favorable circumstances, apparently, and the Intelligencer wishes it success.

The Cuban Situation.

Sylvester Scovel, the newspaper correspondent, who is with General Rivera, the successor of Maceo, in Cuba, gives information under date of January 8, which is important as throwing light on the situation on the island. It is a denial of Weyler's boast that the insurrection has been crushed in Pinar del Rio, and includes an interesting interview with the commander of the insurgents in that province.

It appears that the Cubans are still holding their own against the enormous force of Spanish troops and have not lost hope. The important point is Rivera's statement that he does not want for men, but has plenty of them. The great need is arms and ammunition. He is confident that but for this drawback he could place an army of 50,000 men in Havana province before the winter is over. Ten thousand rifles could be used to good advantage. General Rivera declares that the cause of the revolutionists has suffered no loss of ground, and that Gomez will enter Matanzas with a much larger number of men than last year. Rivera says "He will sweep Havana well."

Much more evidence may be given these statements by Scovel than to the average report which comes in the shape of rumor by way of Key West. Scovel is known to be in the field with the Cuban army, and his letters, ever since he has been in Cuba, have been free from sensationalism and have been regarded as thoroughly reliable. His last letter clearly indicates that there has been no loss of heart on the Cuban side, but that on the contrary the struggle is as much alive as ever; that a wonderful campaign is being conducted almost at the very gates of Havana, in the face of a powerful army, and that, although the Cubans may be doomed to defeat sooner or later, the spirit of the rebellion is now far from being broken.

Down in Louisville there are $250,000 in a safe and the combination is lost. Efforts to drill into the safe have been failures. We would suggest that perhaps there are gentlemen confined in the Kentucky penitentiary who might solve the problem. Why not put them to work?

Not Practicable.

The bill introduced by Congressman Spencer, of Mississippi, providing for the purchase of Cuba by the United States, for $200,000,000, is likely to be pigeon-holed in the committee room, and it is just as well that it should be. The Mississippi representative does not seem to be acting advisedly in the matter, though his motives may be the very best in the world. He conceives that the proposed purchase would be the easiest and quickest settlement of the trouble and that it would obviate any further embarrassments.

There are several obstacles in the way of Mr. Spencer's bill. Aside from the lack of sentiment in favor of the purchase at this time, it would hardly be the part of good business or statesmanship to proceed with a provision for such a deal without the knowledge that the stipulated price would be acceptable to the party of the other part. Spain would be very likely to inform us that Cuba is not in the market at any price, much less for an amount scarcely one-half what she has already expended, and gone in debt for, in the effort to suppress the insurrection.

To deal with such propositions as that of Representative Spencer at this particular time, when there are only a few weeks of life left for the present Congress and administration, would be a waste of time, and there is no probability that Congress will take the matter up. In fact, it is becoming more and more apparent each day that the Cuban question will be left over for the McKinley administration to deal with, and that means it will be dealt with in whatever manner the conditions call for at the time. Certainly the course of the administration will be creditable to the country. Mr. Sherman has already intimated as much.

The Democratic newspaper writers are much disturbed in mind for fear that the Republican legislature is going to make no mistakes. This disturbed state of mind is manifest in the numerous predictions of all sorts of schemes that may tempt the legislature to fall by the wayside, and the anticipation of troubles that are to beset the pathway of the Republican brethren. We hope our Democratic contemporaries will not permit their anxiety to carry them away. The state is in safe hands.

A Shameful Course.

The Popocratic press has begun its campaign of abuse of the McKinley administration weeks before the inauguration. It doesn't matter that there is yet nothing of record to complain of, the abuse goes on just the same. One would think, to read the editorial columns of the Popocratic papers, that McKinley had been in office a year and had proven himself an unworthy President.

The advance vilification is an indication of what we may expect for the next four years. There is to be no let up. Misrepresentation and slander are to be the stock in trade in an endeavor to prejudice ignorant classes against an administration that will stand for a sound currency and the national honor. It is, we presume, a part of the "campaign of education" which Mr. Bryan announces is to be maintained from now on.

The trouble with our Popocratic friends is that they are as much lacking in discretion as they are deficient in patriotism. They may think they are patriotic, but they are not. It isn't patriotic to appeal to prejudice and the worst natures of men in advocating a cause. The contemptible course now being pursued with the purpose of prejudicing the ignorant and thoughtless classes against the McKinley administration in advance is unworthy of any portion of the American press and beneath the dignity of American citizenship.

The Popocratic combine will only suffer in the estimation of the masses of the people by this course. The respectable element of the Democratic press—that portion which refused to join in the crusade against the national honor in the late campaign, is not giving its encouragement to the Popocratic vilifiers of those who will be entrusted with the welfare of the nation for the next four years.

The English illustrated papers are caricaturing President-elect McKinley in the act of being inaugurated in a suit of American made clothes—that is, a suit made wholly of American wool, the goods being manufactured in America, and made up by an American tailor. The caricature depicts the new President in an ill-fitting, unfashionable suit, and ridicules the idea that American tailors are up-to-date. The real fun in the matter is that English tailors are notorious for their misfits and lack of taste, while American tailors are famous for the contrary characteristic, and the English illustrated papers do not seem to realize the fact.

Subscriber—It depends upon how you view him whether a political "boss" is a worthy individual or not. It has come to be the custom to apply the title to every man who has been successful as a leader, or in the management of a political campaign, and on this account the term has lost its original significance. The gentleman you refer to, Mr. Hanna, cannot be properly called a "boss." He was the chosen head of the Republican campaign organization and in that position exhib-
